▼ VANGO AIRHUB HEXAWAY II LOW AWNING

One of the best things about vanlife is chilling out with your mates back at the camper. You want to share photos, get your favourite tippie in hand, and stick on a few tunes. It really is the perfect way to unwind...

But to do that, you need a bit of extra indoor space. Fun though it might be to think about, cramming five or six adventurers into your campervan can get pretty crowded. What you're after is a place to socialise; a place guaranteed to be the envy of all your vanning buddies.

Well, outdoor brand Vango reckon they've found the answer with the Airhub Hexaway II Low Awning – a nifty hexagonal hub that adds over 3m to your campervan and turns you into the perfect post-adventure host.

Ideal for all kinds of campervan excursions, the Hexaway II benefits from being pole free, where faff-free installation is achieved in a matter of minutes using what Vango calls AirBeam technology. Here, a handy double-action pump rapidly inflates your awning, so you can put it up without having to wrestle with any poles.

Fully wind and rain tested, the Hexaway II is built to last with tough, durable Sentinel Pro Fabric that features a whopping 420 double ripstop threads. Looks like you've just found yourself the perfect awning to take on adventure after adventure.

If you're a campervanner seeking out a stylish extension for your pride and joy, the Vango Airhub Hexaway II is well worth checking out.
